

THE FESTIVAL

by

Philip Mazeikas

There once was a man who was in the wilderness.

As he walked, he passed a loud and bright festival.

The man could have danced in the light of the torches.

The man could have ate and drank fine foods and wines.

The man could have spent his time listening to the festival music.

The man continued on into the wilderness.